Modularity and organically shaped profiles.

The P.O.V. collection features a modular design and an organically shaped table base. While it may look discreet, a P.O.V. table has the potential to command a room – it all depends on your point of view.

P.O.V. tables come in two heights, three base types and six tabletop shapes. The modular system boasts dozens of options, making it suitable for almost any interior – an office, dining hall, café or restaurant.

The collection includes a stackable dining stool of the same name, which serves both a functional as well as a playful role. The collection is available in three types of wood – beech, oak and American walnut – and finished in various colours.

Designed by Kaschkasch.

The German duo Florian Kallus and Sebastian Schneider established the Cologne-based design studio kaschkasch in 2011. The duo works in furniture design and lighting. Guided in their creative approach by discussion and collaboration, the two designers focus on bridging traditional craft with innovative technical solutions. In all their work the Kaschkasch team aim to find symbiosis between functionality, simplicity and beauty.
